Medicare is NOT One-Size-Fits-All

Florida is home to Manatee County. Bradenton is the largest city as well as the county seat. The Florida manatee, the state's official marine mammal, inspired the county's name when it was established in 1855.

For thousands of years, Native Americans had lived in what is now Manatee County. Archaeological digs at Perico Island and Terra Ceia, among other locations in the county, have revealed shell middens. The materials found during these digs belonged to Woodland period peoples. The Armed Occupation Act, which was passed in 1842, allowed people to settle in the region. One of the first colonies was the thirty-one-person Manatee Colony, which was commanded by Colonel Samuel Reid and comprised both Black and White residents. Joseph and Hector Braden were two other well-known early settlers who settled in a region close to the Manatee River in 1842. During the Panic of 1837, the two had lost the land for their plantations in northern Florida. The population as of the US Census 2020 was 55,698.

BRADENTON

Manatee County is home to the City of Bradenton, which also serves as its County Seat. In the present-day Bradenton, there was a settlement called Angola that was founded by Maroons or runaway slaves and lasted from the late 1700s until 1821. It is thought to have stretched from Sarasota Bay to the Manatee River, which was formerly known as the Oyster River. It is estimated that there were 600–750 people living in the community. Because the Manatee River was too shallow for US Navy vessels to navigate at the time, Angola was a fairly large maroon settlement. Following Andrew Jackson's allies (the Creeks') attack on Angola, the settlement was abandoned. The natural beauty of the area drew Josiah Gates, who moved to the present-day Bradenton area in January 1842 with his family and eight slaves. Because it was close to Fort Brooke, Gates assumed that the area would be popular with new settlers, and that they would require a temporary place to stay while they built their homes. He constructed Gates House, an Inn, at one location and his house near today's 15th Street East. In addition, Gates is recognized as the first American settlers in modern-day Manatee County. The population of the city was 55,698 according to the 2020 census.

PALMETTO

In Manatee County, sits the city of Palmetto. Since 1868, there has been a post office in Palmetto. After moving to the region close to the Manatee River in 1868, Samuel Sparks Lamb, a native of Clarke County, Mississippi, founded Palmetto. Recognized as the "Father of Palmetto," Samuel Sparks Lamb donated multiple land plots and mapped the city at its inception. The palmetto trees that were close to the original town site gave rise to the city's name. P.S. Harlee served as Palmetto's first mayor when the village was first incorporated in May 1893. He also ran the town's general merchandise store. After being reincorporated as a city in 1897, Palmetto expanded during the ensuing years. According to the 2020 census, 13,323 people were living there.

LONGBOAT KEY

Situated between Sarasota Bay and the Gulf of Mexico, Longboat Key is situated south of Anna Maria Island. The counties of Sarasota and Manatee split it almost equally. Native Americans were the original inhabitants of Longboat Key. Hernando De Soto served as Juan de Añasco's scout and was the first to explore the area that is now Longboat Key. In addition to being probably the first European man to see and explore Sarasota Bay, Boca Ciega Bay, and the Manatee River, he spent roughly two months trying to locate a landing site. Colin and Rowlin W. Witt claimed 7.15 acres on the island's north end as their first land claim in 1882, making them the first people of European descent to do so. In the late 1800s, a few more people made land claims on the island, but none of them are known to have settled there permanently. At Byron Corey's pier at the southern tip of the island, the first post office was opened in 1907. In addition, Corey was the first postmaster of Longboat Key. The post office operated until 1921, when a hurricane destroyed it. Longboat Key was incorporated in 1955. 7,505 people were living in the town as of the 2020 census.

BAYSHORE GARDENS

In Manatee County, Bayshore Gardens is a planned community and census-designated place. Developer Sydney R. Newman bought the present-day neighborhood in 1955 and laid out a section between U.S. 41 and 26th Street West, which was named Bayshore Gardens Parkway. At nearly two million dollars, the property was acquired, making it the most costly land purchase in the region since the 1920s. The 3,200 acres, which were formerly fields used to grow tomatoes, would now contain a marina, parks, schools, churches, retail establishments, and healthcare facilities in addition to houses built in the then-popular mid-century modern style. In 2020, there were 19,904 people living there.

LAKWOOD RANCH

Situated in southeast Manatee County and northeastern Sarasota County, Lakewood Ranch is a planned community and census-designated place (CDP) encompassing roughly 31,000 acres. John Schroeder first put the region together as Schroeder-Manatee Ranch (SMR) in 1905. Members of the Uihlein family of Milwaukee bought the land in 1922 for use as a ranch, raising cattle and timber. 34,877 people were living in the CDP as of the 2020 census.

MEMPHIS

Memphis is a census-designated place (CDP) and unincorporated community located in Manatee County, Florida. The town's origins can be found in the planning of an 80-acre subdivision that was situated next to Palmetto in the 1880s. Originally owned by Tennessee-born Robert Willis (1855–1933), the land was later sold to I.E. Barwick (1854–1924), who divided it. By the 2020 census, the population had increased from 7,848 in 2010 to 9,024.

SINCE 1984

The origin of the name “Sarasota” is unknown, despite the fact that it has been linked to the region since the earliest European contacts. An imaginative story was created in the early 20th century to coincide with a Sarasota pageant. According to legend, Sara, the daughter of renowned explorer Hernando de Soto, inspired the town’s name.

After exploration, the region was home to ranchos, or fishing camps. The Armed Occupation Act, enacted in 1842, granted land deeds to settlers who agreed to cultivate land in Florida. The Second Seminole War was sparked by the act, which also attracted settlers to Sarasota. The U.S. army occupied the region during the conflict, and Fort Armistead was constructed. At the 2020 US census, the population was 434,006.

ENGLEWOOD

Weeden Island and Safety Harbor culture ceramics were found during archaeological excavations in what is now Englewood. William Goff was one of the first white settlers in the region, having come by schooner from Tampa in 1878. A few miles south of the planned Englewood plat, he settled a parcel of land. Additionally, a post office was established in the area on July 3, 1895. Many orange trees in the area were destroyed by the Great Freeze of 1894 and 1895 and a severe freeze in 1896. For this reason, fish was Englewood’s main product by 1897, according to a Manatee County General Directory. In Sarasota & Charlotte counties, Englewood is a census-designated place (CDP). At the time of the 2020 census, 20,800 people lived there.

FRUITVILLE

Fruitville is a Florida census-designated place (CDP) located in Sarasota County. When European settlers first started to arrive, the region was primarily a sawgrass swamp. Wild cattle once roamed this marshland, but one source claims that their poor health was caused by a deficiency of minerals in the leaves they ate. Eventually, the swamp was drained to improve the area’s farming potential. Due to the expanding orange industry, a wave of pioneers started to settle in Florida in the late 1870s. What is now known as Fruitville was settled in 1876 by a man by the name of Charles Reaves. Some claim that he gave the area the name Fruitville in honor of the plentiful fruit in the area. Reaves was to take over as postmaster. In 2020, there were 15,484 people living there.

LAKWOOD RANCH

First established as Schroeder-Manatee Ranch in 1905, the area was owned by John Schroeder. Members of the Uihlein family of Milwaukee bought the land in 1922 for use as a ranch, raising cattle and timber. Lakewood Ranch was mostly uninhabited until the 1990s, despite its vast size. For a brief while, there existed a small settlement called Lorraine, which was situated close to the junction of State Road 70 and Lorraine Road, which is currently a part of Lakewood Ranch. The small town, which included a post office, a few houses, and a store, was founded in 1915 at an East & West Coast Railroad stop. Workers for the Schroeder Saw Mill and Lorraine Turpentine Company who worked in the timber and turpentine industries called it home. But after those businesses closed, the community disintegrated by the middle of the 1920s. 34,877 people were living in the CDP as of the 2020 census.

LONGBOAT KEY

Native Americans were the original inhabitants of Longboat Key. Hernando De Soto served as Juan de Añasco’s scout and was the first known European to explore the area that is now Longboat Key. He felt the Indians were hostile, so the local legend goes. The Indians left their Longboat in a bayou and fled when the party landed on the island. It was reported that pirate Jean Lafitte was shipwrecked close to or on Longboat Key. After 1848, until the 1880s, little is known about the island because Longboat Key was mostly destroyed by a hurricane that swept through the region. 7,505 people were living in the town as of the 2020 census.

NORTH PORT

Native Americans lived in what is now North Port before the arrival of the Spanish, according to archaeological excavations at Little Salt Spring. Projectile points, a carved oak mortar, and a fragment of a non-returnable wooden boomerang are proof of their existence. North Port was incorporated in 1959 by a special act of the Florida Legislature. The citizens of the city voted in a referendum in 1974 to rename the city North Port and omit the word Charlotte in order to establish the city as a distinct entity. This city is home to 74,793 as of 2020.

SARASOTA

Native Americans first settled in Sarasota, as they did in many other parts of the state, some 10,000 years ago. The Spanish, who landed at Charlotte Harbor to the south in 1513, were the first Europeans to discover the region. In the years before Florida became a United States territory in 1821, the bay became a seasonal hub for American and Cuban traders and fishers. By the 1840s, a significant influx of white settlers had arrived in the region. Old Spanish maps of the area at the time called it Zara Zote, and the newcomers started referring to it as Sara Sota. According to reports, William Whitaker was the first long-term resident of what would eventually become Sarasota, Florida. He raised cattle and sold fish. He wed Manatee resident Mary Jane Wyatt, with whom he had eleven children. This family weathered numerous trials of pioneer life, including Seminole Indian raids. This family still has a large number of descendants in Sarasota. The year 1900 saw the incorporation of Sarasota. Owen Burns was one of the first developers, having constructed numerous structures, homes, roads, and bridges. Sarasota is the Seat for Sarasota County, and has a population of approximately 54,842.

VENICE

Paleo-Indians lived in what is now Venice; researchers have discovered evidence of their presence as far back as 8200 BCE. The region's population and culture evolved over several millennia. When the Spanish arrived in the 1500s, they were met by people who built mounds. Evidence of the Tocobaga and Calusa cultures coexisted in the region around Venice, which served as their border. The first wave of "European" settlers arrived in the region in the 1800s. Due to a tree formation that resembled a carriage and served as a landmark for fishermen, Venice was originally known as Horse and Chaise. Robert Rickford Roberts settled on a homestead close to the bay that now carries his name, Roberts Bay, in the 1870s. French-born Francis H. "Frank" Higel and his wife and six sons arrived in Venice in 1883. For $2,500, he established his own homestead by purchasing land in the Roberts' homestead. Higel started a citrus company that produced several lines of canned citrus products, including orange wine, jams, pickled orange peel, and lemon juice. In order to serve the thirty residents of the community, Higel opened a post office in 1885 under the name Ery. He was named postmaster in February, but services returned to Osprey when the office closed several months later, in November 1885. Another post office was opened in 1888, this one under the name Venice. 25,463 people called the city home as of the 2020 Census.

DISC GOLF

Disc golf or frisbee golf is played a lot like traditional ball golf but instead of hitting a ball with a club into a hole the player throws a frisbee into a basket. Disc golf can be played by just about anyone at any age. It's also an inexpensive sport to get into. Specialized frisbees for disc golf cost around $10-$15 and a lot of courses are free. Playing disc golf is a great way to get out for some exercise, enjoy nature and have some fun.

Service Club
OF MANATEE COUNTY

Service Club of Manatee County was founded in 1927 by a group of women who provided lunches for needy school children. Bradenton was a small agricultural town and there were few social services. As our community grew, Service Club adapted to the needs of children. The ladies of the club held various fundraisers through the years. As Bradenton and Manatee County grew, so did the need for various agencies to support young people with education, clothing, medical and support services

Today, Service Club of Manatee County supports over 30 local nonprofits and gives out over $130,000 in grants. Our current fundraiser, BOOTS AND BLING, brings the community together for an exciting night of live music, food, and live and silent auctions to raise money to meet the needs of the most deserving children.

Please help us to continue this legacy of service and dedication!

Travel

Choosing the perfect
destination

What is your dream vacation? Do you want to lay on the beach, hike a mountain or explore a city? Questions like these are a good starting point to decide on where to go. Do research on some different areas and activities that may interest you and any others that you are traveling with to identify the most suitable vacation area.

How long do you plan on being gone? Don't try to go too far or jam in to many activities if you don't have the time. Leave some free time in your schedule to accommodate any unforeseen changes during the trip.

Depending on what type of climate you are wanting to vacation in, plan your trip for an appropriate time of the year in that area. Also watch out for peak seasons at some popular vacation destinations. At these times prices may be higher with larger crowds.

Plan:

- Research and learn about the area you are heading to
- Check the Travel Advisories for your intended destination
- Pack the appropriate clothing and supplies you will need for your trip
- Have a backup plan in case of injury or illness while on your trip
 - Let friends or family know about your trip

Protect:

- Make sure the food and water in the area is safe to consume
- Protect your skin from the sun and insects
 - Don't take any unnecessary risks
- Keep an eye on your health while traveling & when you get back
